Who are GPI and what do we do?

Who we are
- Cross government unit within the Stabilisation Unit, is accountable to the National Security Council, and DfID
- Small, flexible and responsive - staffed with civil servants seconded from different HMG departments with experts on: decentralisation, human resources, rule of law, public service ethics and constitutional reform, and change management.

What we do
- Expert practitioner advice to countries of priority to the UK Government on civil service and centre of government reform
- Support is practical and iterative. Short and long term interventions & programmes
- Civil service practitioners offer current advice and explore how best – or indeed whether – the principles, methods and practice of UK and other countries’ reforms can be adapted to fit the local priorities and context.
UK experience at reform has been chaotic, non linear and driven by politics. The stories, principles, lessons and models from a wide range of UK reforms provide a rich source of stimulus, encouragement and warning for reformers everywhere.

The GPI offer

• GPI work with HMG priority countries at the centre of government to build civil service capability, effectiveness and efficiency – using its core funding for scoping and initial delivery activity.

• GPI work to increase the impact of reform initiatives by providing partner governments with a ‘critical friend’ and practitioner to practitioner support.

• GPI support HMG offices and teams to improve the effectiveness of the design, delivery and monitoring of interventions.

• Recently, GPI have taken on the delivery of DfID’s Partnerships for Development programme

• GPI provides support rooted in its extensive lesson learning over time, captured in our publications
The GPI offer

NSGI can offer ad hoc support, using its core funding, drawing on experiences from a variety of countries and situations.

- Scoping and problem definition – helping posts to unpack why particular institutions don’t work effectively;
- Programme design and development with whoever is to implement it;
- Programme reviews and quality assurance – supporting oversight and monitoring of programmes implemented by other actors;
- Capability development – in addition to supporting the capability development of partner institutions we can also support the development HMG staff on institutional reform through either virtual or at-post workshops.
Our methodology

• We know from experience, both in the UK and overseas that public/civil service reform is complex, messy, non-linear and most importantly political, we therefore take great care to work closely with colleagues and to build trust locally.

• As a result we will always give an honest and open assessment of whether we think a problem can be addressed, how and who may be placed to do so – all in the specific country and political context.

• We aim to create a continuous learning loop throughout the lifetime of a project or programme.
Recent developments

GPI have undergone a series of changes recently:

• We’ve had a name change! And, we’re growing...in numbers and in remit – focus on being a ‘centre of excellence’ both in the UK and Internationally on peer to peer partnerships

• Closed a flagship programme in Zambia after 5+ years of partnership

• Started a new programme with the Ministry of Justice in Uzbekistan
Recent developments

• GPI have agreed to be the Partnership Platform for DfID’s Partnerships for Development programme, with the following objectives:

1. To increase the number of HMG organisations delivering peer-to-peer partnerships

2. To enhance the effectiveness of HMG organisations delivering partnerships

3. To enhance co-ordination of peer-to-peer partnerships

4. To advance peer-to-peer as an aid modality
How are we doing this?

1) Expansion of our own partnership working in DfID priority countries

2) Funding new and existing partnership units across HMG

3) Supporting learning collaborations with HMG partnership providers, backed by ‘seed funding’

4) Performing a brokering role at country or regional level to match supply and demand.

5) Establishing a Community of Practice in Peer-to-Peer Institutional Partnerships
